

Be loving and nonjudgmental.

Serve without expectations of gratitude.

In your efforts to minister, be careful not to do for them what they could do for themselves or take away opportunities to become more self-reliant.

Giving money isn't the answer to every financial problem. Often time, love, or other acts of service are more meaningful solutions.

Be sensitive, and don't cross boundaries you shouldn't.

The Lord will bless us for sacrificing to bless others, but we are counseled not to do more than we are able to do.
